

Furnace Creek Sunday Brunch Road Trip

Ever been to Death Valley ?? How about 223 feet below sea-level ??

Come out on Sunday March 29th and do both. Join your fellow Porsche owners for a LVRPCA day trip as we enjoy a scenic drive through Emergent pass and the back side of Death Valley as we follow Bad Water Road up to the Furnace Creek Inn, (<http://www.furnacecreekresort.com/>) for a relaxing and delicious Sunday Brunch.

Details

The group will meet up at 8:30am, at the gas station where Routes 159 and 160 meet, and head out at 8:45am. We will follow 160 out toward Pahrump, turning left on to Old Spanish Trail Highway, a.k.a. Tecopa Road. We will follow Old Spanish Trail out through Emigrant Pass, the town of Tecopa, and on to the town of Shoshone. We'll make a stop in Shoshone for Lotto Tickets, coffee, fuel and a restroom break before heading back out on the road. We will continue to follow along Old Spanish Trail until we pick Route 127 North. Route 127 will take us to Route 178 where we will head west to Bad Water Road. Once on Bad Water Road, with Death Valley on the left and beautiful cliffs rising on the right, we will make our way north to Furnace Creek. We should reach our destination, the Inn at Furnace Creek, at just before noon.

Cost for the brunch is $26.95 plus tax and is paid directly to the Inn (don't forget the tip too). After eating, we will spend a little time wandering the grounds of the Inn, taking in the breathtaking views of the surrounding mountains and inspiring canyons.

At about 3:00pm, we will gather up and head back to Las Vegas. Following Route 190 East, we will turn South on Route 127 and follow it back to Shoshone. About 9 miles after Shoshone, we will turn left and pickup Old Spanish Trail heading back the way we came out. Route 160 will soon appear and one right turn will get us back to our original starting point, the gas station (at about 4:30pm).
